A GIRL OF YESTERDAY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

(Copyright, 1910, by Amosnoted Literary Press.)

One day some one said: "A woman of your age," and then Beatrice realized that she was no longer a girl. She went to her room, looked at herself squarely in the mirror, and discovered a patch of white in her pompadour. There was also a little sagging of flesh beneath her chin, and a wrinkle or two between her eyes.

"Oh, you girl of yesterday!" Beatrice said to the face in the mirror, "why can't you make up your mind that you will soon be fair and forty, even if you aren't fat?"

But the face in the glass looked at her sadly, and answered never a word.

That night Beatrice wrote to Angus March. He was a Scotchman who had loved her for years. Beatrice had grown so accustomed to the monotony of being asked to marry him that she would shake her head wearily and demand: "Why don't you say it some new way, Angus?" and he would reply, with his whimsical smile: "There's only one way to say 'I love you,' and that is to say it." "I should think you would get tired," she would retort, and then he would answer: "I shall never get tired, and some day you will say 'yes.'"

"Perhaps—when I get too old to charm any other man," was her cruel summing up.

But she could not hurt him. "You love me," he said, "and no other man can win you away from me—I am willing to let any one enter the field. It is marriage you fear, not me."

And deep in her heart Beatrice knew that he spoke the truth.

Her father and mother had been very unhappy. All her little girl life she had been tossed between tempestuous temperaments, until she had declined, passionately, "I'll never marry—never—never—never!" Until now she had kept her word.

But it was not easy to face her future alone. Ten years ago her beautiful mother had died, and five years previous to that her father had killed himself. It was all very tragic, and the daughter had asserted repeatedly when Angus had pleaded the happy married life of his own parents: "But how do we know that we would be like your father and mother? It might happen that we would be like mine."

"We would be happy," Angus stated gravely. "I am not tyrannical and you are not jealous. It was tyranny and jealousy that caused your father and mother to draw apart."

"Mother was such a beauty," Beatrice defended, "and father loved her so."

"And you are not a beauty," Angus told her, laughing at the flash that lighted her eyes, "you are simply lovely, and sweet, but men don't toast you in three states, thank heaven."

"I know what you mean," Beatrice's tone matched his in gravity. "You mean that mother's beauty made her abnormal, and she expected as much adulation as she had before her marriage from a world of lovers, and father wasn't willing to stand that. He wanted her to think only of him."

"Every man wants his wife to think only of him," Angus said, "and if I with you I shall not be afraid."

Yet, he had not won her, and now she was nearly 35, and her beauty was waning, and soon other men wouldn't care for her.

She said something of the kind in her letter to Angus.

"I am so blue that if you were here and were masterful enough, I am afraid I would say 'yes,' and that is why I don't want you to visit me in August. I know my weaknesses, and I know that I have been so near giving in, that I shan't be able to hold my own this time. So please go to Europe instead of coming up here. You can't want to marry a girl simply because she is afraid to face a future of old-maidism."

The answer that she received made her smile. "As if you needed to marry to escape single blessedness. Every one knows you would be glad to sail away with you to the end of the world."

But Beatrice knew better. She had reached the point where at dances she sat occasionally among the wall flowers. To be sure, that was because most of the men in her small town were younger than she, and to them she was an old story, but she was not sure that it would not be the same with the older men in a larger community.

Anyhow, she wouldn't accept Angus as a last resort. It wouldn't be fair to him. And so she came to a strange conclusion. She would test her attractiveness. She would go to some big summer hotel and see if men called her fair, then she would marry Angus with a clear conscience.

She would know then that it was love and not heartthrob that caused her to accept him.

In August, while Angus went obediently abroad, she began her campaign of conquest.

She was not a flirt, however, nor hard hearted. "I am not going to let any man really fall in love with me," she said, "but I do want to be sure that I am not wronging Angus by letting him tie himself to an unattractive wife."

No one would have called her unattractive as she entered the dining room the morning after her arrival. She was in rose-colored linen, with a flat sailor hat which hid the white lock in front. Her slender figure, her ease of manner, the charm of her direct glance, made the women look at her with some curiosity and the men sit up and take notice.

But all day long, she was alone. She walked on the beach, or read a novel in a shady corner of the porch, and spoke to no one. Only when night came did she permit any approach from the guests in the house, and then, a dream in white and silver, she met the men and conquered them.

She was chaperoned by a sedate aunt, and her introductions were all that could be desired. In her own town her charm had been undervalued because people had known her all ways, but here, where the keenness of her wit came unexpectedly, where her grace was a revelation, and where her womanliness, which was tinged with old-fashioned sweetness was new to the worldly-wise, she became at once the vogue.

And she enjoyed it. It was a renewal of her youth to have her card filled at all the dances, to have violets and candy again offered at her shrine, to be the much desired guest on all motor trips and yachting parties.

There was a count from Austria who raved about her; a millionaire from the west began a masterful wooing and a famous playwright wrote sonnets to her eyebrows.

Then, in the midst of her popularity, Beatrice ran away.

She explained her conduct in a letter to Angus.

"They were beginning to fall in love with me, and of course I couldn't have that. No nice woman wants to hurt a man, and so I left. And now if you please, I'll marry you, Angus, because you are really the only man who understands me, and who will know how to keep me from being unhappy as my mother was. And while I am a girl of yesterday, and have a patch of white in my pompadour, I know you are going to love me just as well when my whole head is snowy, and you won't care whether I am old and wrinkled and bent, because love laughs at those things doesn't it? Love such as you will give me, and which I know now that I can give to you, Angus."

First Child Not Always Best.

The theory that the first born child is always the best olive branch of the family is disputed by Dr. J. W. Hunter of the British Medical Association.

"Many first born children come into the world before their parents have attained real maturity," he said recently, "and it stands to reason that they cannot be of the same healthy stuff as children born later, when physically and mentally, the parents are fitter."

The early upbringing of the first child, especially in working class families, is often a sort of experiment in child rearing for the young wife. She has everybody giving her advice, good and bad and indifferent, and she has her own fancies as well. The infant subject of all this bother is not the one that comes off best. With later children the mother has greater skill, confidence and understanding, and the child is, therefore, better reared, profiting by the experiments, so to speak on its predecessors."

Roundup of Wild Horses.

A big band of wild horses running in the country between north and south Saskatchewan rivers have been rounded up by a picked band of horsemen and are now being examined for disease.

The roundup took two months and 180 horses were captured by the simple method of keeping them always on the move in a circle until they were tired out. The leaders were shot as they were rounded up, and the capture of the others in small bands was then easy.—Calgary News.

Spanish Aristocracy.

There are 200 dukes, 900 marquises and thousands of counts in Spain, according to a recent count. Legitimate Spanish nobility, or, better, aristocracy, is called the grandees, in English the grandees. It was instituted by Emperor Charles V. in 1520, so that Spain could be just "other countries in one respect."

WOMEN'S HARD WORK

Labor of the "Weaker Sex" in Japan.

Task of Replenishing Coal Bunkers of Great Ocean Liners Is Done by Them With Celerity and Ease.

The "weaker sex" is not mentioned in Japan. There, the heavy work is shared by women, even the heavy work of loading great ships at Nagasaki.

This is a tremendous task. It is done largely by women who live at Kogakura, Fukuda, Shikimi and in the many little villages that skirt the town. At daybreak they are to be met, rowing down to Nagasaki to take their full share in one of their country's most interesting national enterprises.

The town owes its importance as a coal station to the rich coal mines at Takashima and other surrounding districts, and lighters bring the coal alongside of the steamers.

Men and women stand shoulder to shoulder on barrels, baskets, boxes or anything that will give them a foot hold, and fill a long line of baskets each containing about two buckets of coal. These are passed to the platform hung on the side of the ship, on each of which a young girl stands. Sometimes there are five or six lines of platforms on either side of the steamer. These huge basins of coal are passed to one girl, who in turn swings it up to the one above her, and so on along the line, with the swiftness and regularity of machinery.

As the girl at the top empties the coal down the chute she throws away the empty basket and with the same movements catches a full one. Above on the deck, sit the tallies, one for each line, and as every seventh basket is emptied the girl calls out "Oi," and he places a mark on a sheet. Twenty marks count as one ton, and it is estimated that 1,000 tons of coal is a good day's work for a fair-sized gang. The girls continue at this task until morning till mid afternoon, in the winter's cold and under the blazing summer sun, and at noon they have a short rest and eat their lunch of rice.

In one day a great ocean liner can be loaded with enough coal to carry her from Nagasaki to San Francisco. This is a magnificent testimony to the strength and endurance of the industrial Japanese woman. A well known traveler in Japan recently remarked: "I do not believe that there is another body of work folk in the world who could have performed the same task in the same time and with the same ease."

The old order is changing with great rapidity, and under the new an important place is reserved for the Japanese woman in industry.

Long Honeymoon.

Sensible girls whose position when married will be a comfortable middle class one, will be well advised not to indulge in a long honeymoon. The ideal wedding tour should be short, quiet and inexpensive. It is foolish to tear hurriedly to rather hackneyed French or Swiss resorts merely to say "Oh, we went on the continent."

There are many comfortable hostels in the quiet beauty spots where a young couple can enjoy each other's society undisturbed by the quizzing glances usually leveled at a nervous bride when she makes her appearance at a crowded table d'hôte, says Home Notes.

A wise bishop said: "As to long honeymoons... they are a waste of money at a moment when every shilling is wanted for much more pressing objects; they are a loss of time, which soon comes to be dreary and weary. Six days, by all means, and then, oh happy friends, go straight home; and the sooner you are at home the sooner you will find out what married happiness means."

Carnegie's Inspiration.

The old handloom weavers of Dunfermline, to the number of over 200, had their annual drive recently, the expense of which was generously defrayed by wealthy sons of former weavers. A letter from Mr. Andrew Carnegie was read, dated from Skibo Castle, in which he said: "I regret I cannot leave Skibo, but wish to send my greetings to the auld weavers, of whom I have the right to claim being one by descent. After retirement from business, and while considering deeply what my next move would be, I noticed in the Scientific American these words: 'The gods send thread from heaven,' and thereupon I resolved to begin a web. I took the first step in the distribution of wealth, and I assure you that I have found the truth of the proverb. The gods do send thread for a web begun."

Her Opportunity.

"What!" exclaimed her husband in surprise. "You don't mean to tell me you are going downtown on a shopping expedition in all this rain?"

"Why, of course I am," replied his wife. "For nearly six weeks I've been saving up money for a rainy day."

Out of Reach.

"John, that's a love of a hat!"

"So it is, dear."

"It would look beautiful on me?"

"So it would, dear."

"It would cause a furore, dear!"

"Yes, and it would cause my book—the bank to be examined, too."

SMOKE SIGNALS OF INDIANS

How the Redman Communicated With His People and Warned Them of Danger.

The traveler on the plains in the early days soon learned the significance of the spires of smoke that he sometimes saw rising from a distant ridge or hill and answered from a different direction. It was the signal talk of the Indians across miles of intervening ground, a signal used in rallying the warriors for an attack, or warning them for a retreat.

The Indian had a way of sending the smoke up in rings or puffs, knowing that such a smoke column would at once be noticed and understood as a signal, and not mistaken for the smoke of some camp-fire. He made his rings by covering the little fire with his blanket for a moment and allowing the smoke to ascend, when he instantly covered the fire again. The column of ascending smoke had said to very Indian within thirty miles, "Beware! An enemy is near!"

Three smokes built close together meant "Danger." One smoke merely meant "Attention." Two smokes meant "Camp at this place."

Frequently at night the settler or the traveler saw fiery lines crossing the sky, shooting up and falling, perhaps taking a direction diagonal to the lines of vision. He might guess that these were the signals of the Indians, but unless he were an old-timer he might not be able to interpret the signals. The old-timer and the squawman knew that one line-arrow, an arrow prepared by treating the head of the shaft with gunpowder and fine bark, meant the same as three columns of smoke puffs. "An enemy is near." Two arrows meant "Danger," three arrows, "The danger is great." Several arrows indicated, "The enemy is too powerful for us."

Did Not Know Own Child.

Of unassigned paintings the Dusseldorf Zeitung tells an amusing story which may interest picture buyers. Achenbach, the German artist, executed a portrait about ten years ago. A certain collector had bought from an art dealer a seascape represented as a genuine Achenbach. Afterward, it was pronounced to be a copy. The buyer brought an action against the dealer who turned the tables by declaring that his picture was genuine, and the other was a copy.

Achenbach himself was summoned by the courts to tell which was which. Amazed at the absolute similarity of the two paintings, he gazed at them for a long time, inspected them closely, front and back, sniffed them, and then frankly admitted he could not tell which was the original and which "he copy."

Japanese Method of Cold Storage.

On a recent visit to the city of Takata, on the northwest coast of Japan, I had occasion to observe, what at first thought I imagined was a hay stack, but on investigation found to be an immense mound of snow covered with straw matting. The purpose of this mound was to keep in cold storage, for consumption in summer, fish caught in the winter time. This is the only method of cold storage employed in the rural districts in the north west of Japan, where the snowfall is very deep in winter and these stacks are to be seen in considerable numbers distributed in different parts of the country.—Strand Magazine.

An Idyl of Theocritus.

The thistle Love—a cruel live once stung him, as he was rifling honey from the hives, and pricked his finger tips all; then he was in pain, and blew upon his hand, and leaped, and stamped the ground. And then he showed his hurt to Aphrodite, and made much complaint, how that the bee is a tiny creature, and yet when it stings it does! And his mother laughed out, and said, "Art thou not even such a creature as the bees, for tiny art thou, but what wounds thou dearest!"—From the Greek, by Andrew Lang.

Darkening the Eyebrows.

The hair of the eyebrows retains its color long after the hair of the head has turned gray. Light and gray eyebrows detract from the appearance, and not only is it justifiable to darken them, but it is an easy process, as it can be done with pomade pencils, which come for the purpose. It is the only application of color that is in any way an improvement to the face. Some pencil under the lower lid, thinking that it improves the looks. They are much deceived, for it gives a very artificial appearance to the face, the same as painting the cheeks or changing the color of the hair.

Undying Fame.

"Far be it from me to boast braggingly of my family tree," said the colored man who was whitewashing our chicken coop, "but one ob mah relatives was."

"General Washington's personal body-servant, sah?" we interrupted, meekly, but gleefully.

"He was no sich thing, sah," warmly retorted the colored man; "he was one of Misteh Jack Johnson's most esteemed sparrin' pardnehs befo' de fight!"

An Uncertain Luxury.

"I never saw a man who insisted on having a sure thing as Mr. Pennwise does. He declines to pay for anything unless he knows exactly what he is getting."

"That's true. He won't even buy a canteloupe."

Entered as SECOND CLASS MATTER June 22, 1902 at RICHMOND, CALIFORNIA, under the ACT OF CONGRESS OF MARCH 3, 1879.

GET YOUR CONGRESSMAN TO VOTE FOR SAN FRANCISCO-1915

The Terminal is Republican and stands as it always has stood, for a square deal.

Do the people of Richmond want Seidelism in our city government? If so, they would have such an easy time that they would even then be dissatisfied. So give us a government of hard work, please, for the people want it, and the people rule.

Our city council it is charged, is controlled by Republicans and that street work is not done right, that poor people must pay too many installments, that the west side controls our city affairs, and so on; even so, the people rule and the results will be unchanged in this city, in November, as people will not put aside party, and it is the Republican party that does things.

POLITICAL.

The Terminal is the original union labor newspaper of Richmond.

The Terminal has always been for a square deal and for a commercial city and our files prove it.

Charles Daley, Republican nominee for public administrator will make a competent officer. He is running the race all by himself and our readers can guess the winner.

At the late St. George Republican meeting there was great enthusiasm and only one little unpleasantness to mar the occasion which was a little side step of Huber vs. Rihn. All our candidates were there.

Did you hear Hon. Hiram Warren Johnson? He represents the new nationalism; the freedom of the white slave called human republicanism; the principles of Theodore Roosevelt.

Hon. M. H. Hurley, incumbent county recorder, carries a union printer's card and is very popular among our fraternity. Although a cripple, using crutches, he never runs any stereotyped hard luck story, for he is thoroughly competent in the public service, a splendid recorder, courteous and polite. He has an affinity for democracy very strong in the nascent state.

Hon. Elam C. Brown, incumbent county surveyor, has set his tripod and is following the blazed trail into the court house for another term. He is very popular among the voters of that vicinage of Mount Diablo Meridian that is in Contra Costa County, and, as the Terminal stated that the present surveyor should be retained to finish surveys that he has begun. There is no doubt but that he will be re-elected.

If the spirit could move the smoldering ashes of Captain John Brown, the "Osawatimie Brown" of Kansas, so that he could have been present in mortality, he would have been pleased with Hiram Johnson's speech; for Hiram Johnson is advocating just such principles as the martyred Brown advocated; Brown worked for the freedom of the Negro slave, and Johnson is working for the freedom of the White slave. John Brown was called a fanatic on negro slavery and Hiram Johnson is called a fanatic on white slavery. They hanged John Brown; will the people hang Hiram Johnson on the eighth day of November?

The great boom for the re-election of Sheriff R. R. Veale will not down; is increasing in momentum. Dr. Clark L. Abbott says that his majority will not be less than one thousand. Hon. C. M. Belshaw says that Sheriff Veale attends strictly to the business of the office and saves the amount of taxes each year from confessions from the prisoners, that otherwise would involve the county in expensive law suits to convict. "The people like him," says former Senator Belshaw, "and will return him to that office by a handsome majority."

"The Little General" as he is known, stands by his friends and has a strong personal friendship. There are no personal fights against him and he has at his back the united sentiment of the Republicans.

The ability of Sheriff Veale has never been questioned. He is successful in his pursuits of fugitives from justice and his many friends say that he will surely be re-elected. Sheriff Veale moves long pleasantly and quietly, and has every confidence in the united Republican vote. Under Sheriff John Birmingham says Veale will be elected hands down.

WOMAN'S IMPROVEMENT CLUB, RICHMOND, CALIFORNIA

PROGRAM FOR MONDAY, OCT. 24, 1910, 2 P. M., AT A. O. U. W. HALL

Public Cordially Invited to Attend

The Woman's Improvement Club has undertaken this year, as one of its branches of study, the subject of social and industrial conditions. The club has secured speakers for next Monday who will ably present questions along these lines, upon which they are well informed, and offers to the public the privilege of attending the meeting. It is not often that this city has such an opportunity as will be enjoyed in the featured program presented below.

The Woman's Improvement Club of Richmond will render the following high-class program at A. O. U. W. hall, Monday afternoon:

Music.—Address on Weights and Measures by Mrs. Francesca Pierce of San Francisco.

Address on "What the Unions Have Done for Women," by Hannah Nolan of San Francisco.

Address by Mrs. Lillian Harris Coffin of San Francisco, Chairman State Central Committee of California Equal Suffrage Association on the work of her department.

Address by Mrs. Augusta C. Bainbridge on "The White Slave Traffic." Mrs. Bainbridge is a special worker for the W. C. T. U. against this great crime. This address is preceded by a choice music selection.

Address by Miss Ethel Moore, member of Oakland Playground Commission, and also a representative of the College Equal Suffrage League, upon the great and general interest now taken by women in all public matters.

Music.—Light refreshments. Mrs. Geoghegan will be hostess of the day.

MORE BUILDINGS.

A big boom has struck Richmond in the middle.

John Murray's three story building is making good progress.

Building in Richmond is steady showing a substantial growth about the centers.

Work has been started on the knitting factory building near Chanslor avenue and Second street.

The buildings of the Western Steel and Pipe Co., covering two acres, is making speedy progress.

The interior of the First National Bank Building is undergoing interior artistic transformation.

The contract has been let to erect a two story, Class A, building for the Richmond Bank of Savings at Tenth Street and Macdonald Avenue, two-story.

Slattery & Jones have completed the construction of the Central Catholic Church on Tenth and Bissell avenue, a substantial structure at a cost of $6,000 and E. A. Marshall did the painting. The bell can be heard all over San Pablo Valley.

greeted the association members, the principal meeting of the sessions took place. It was presided over by President Richardson and the discussions were full of interest and valuable information.

The board of directors of the exposition committee is composed of Homer S. King, Rudolph J. Tausig, John Barneson, W. B. Bourn, John A. Britton, M. J. Brandenstein, Frank L. Brown, P. T. Clay, William H. Crocker, J. H. Crothers, Andrew M. Davis, Chas. de Young, M. H. de Young, Alfred L. Esberg, Chas. S. Fee, A. W. Foster, Henry F. Fortman, R. B. Hale, I. W. Helman Jr., S. Fred Hogue, C. W. Hyman, Hon. P. H. McCarthy, James McNab, Charles C. Moore, Thornwell Mullaly, Dent H. Robert, James Rolph Jr., A. W. Scott Jr., Henry T. Scott, and Leon Sloss. All these directors are men of large affairs in San Francisco and several have the honor of being regents of the State university or trustees of the Leland Stanford Jr. university. These directors were chosen from a large committee of representative citizens at a public meeting and have undertaken the task of securing for California and San Francisco a great exposition for 1915.

Several of the editors went to the meeting undecided whether it would be wise to support the constitutional amendments and another took part in the discussions. The information presented by the speakers was listened to intently and when the efforts being put forth by New Orleans and Louisiana to capture the prize of congressional recognition were pointed out, state pride was aroused and the meeting developed into one of great enthusiasm for the project under consideration.

ALHAMBRA FLOURISHES

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Alhambra Mineral Water Company at Martinez, last Tuesday, at which a majority of the stock was represented, the excellent condition was shown.

The directors and officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows: President, A. E. Blum; secretary and treasurer, L. W. Lash; manager, L. M. Lash. On account of the unsatisfactory condition of the local supply, many Richmond people are using Alhambra earth juice with beneficial results.

WINEHAVEN FIREMEN

At the second annual ball of the Richmond Volunteer Fire Company, No. 5, of Winehaven, was a successful affair, the best of the season, at East Shore Park. Every one present declared that the refreshments served were the best ever enjoyed at any entertainment given in this city. The fruitades and grape juices were all furnished by Superintendent S. Berndt of the California Wine Association and showed in a practical way the popularity of "Calva" among the guests which number of 800. The young people will always remember Mr. Berndt for his refreshing treat.

Manager F. B. Loop, served the refreshments, or supervised the same. Mr. Loop is one of the best hotel managers on this coast and as hotel manager at Winehaven he is often called upon to serve 500 guests, presto change, and is thoroughly competent to give particular service to particular people and his courteous and graceful manner has made him very popular. All the brave firemen rendered his portion of the duties according to program and the success of this ball was due to the efficient service and the esteemed popularity of the following committee: Reception: F. B. Loop, S. Berndt, M. Freeman, C. S. Mahne, K. J. Floyd, L. Busse; floor: L. G. Brown, J. Furtado, S. Delbow; refreshment: S. Berndt, D. Setlow, J. Bernhardt, C. R. Noonan, L. Busse, F. B. Loop, M. Freeman, K. J. Floyd, A. Gibson.

HON. HIRAM W. JOHNSON
ADDRESSES RICHMOND REPUBLICANS

The Republican rally at Richmond opera house was largely attended Thursday evening. The great auditorium was decorated in appropriate colors in which the American flag predominated. The ladies were in evidence too. Richmond band of sixteen pieces were out in uniform and played the national airs and the streets were gayly decorated and fireworks were in evidence for this was the occasion of the speech of Governor Hiram Warren Johnson. The local Republican committee planned the arrangements. The meeting was larger than the Bell meeting, the overflow scrambling for seats in the gallery. The presence of Hon. Charles M. Belshaw added to the enthusiasm, for every one saw the united, rejuvenated, reliable, tated Republican line-up in Contra Costa County, an end of the Kilfenny war of factions which the Terminal helped to heal. The presence of Hon. M. R. Jones added to the spirit of optimism and harmony that prevailed.

Amid thunderous applause, Dr. C. L. Abbott escorted Mr. Johnson down the passway to the speaker's platform. The candidates, Hon. Hiram Warren Johnson, Hon. Jno. Mitchell, Hon. M. R. Jones, Hon. R. R. Veale, Hon. C. L. Abbott, Hon. A. B. McKenzie, Hon. Geo. Meese, Hon. M. R. Joost, Hon. L. Buttner, Hon. C. J. Rihn, Hon. C. A. Odell, John Murray, candidates, and William F. Belknap, Sr., the banker, Hon. C. M. Belshaw, as guests of honor and the chairman of the evening, Judge A. S. Ormsby of Walnut Creek, Chairman of the Republican County Central Committee.

Chairman Ormsby introduced the candidates in order who renewed who renewed their pledges, and then amid a pandemonium of cheers Hiram W. Johnson, presented as the next Governor of California, promptly appeared and acknowledged with courtesy the generous applause. There stood the great Republican leader of the west, as firm as the rock of Gibraltar, not too tall and not too short; not too fat and not too lean, a piercing, keen eye, and a firm facial physiognomy.

He presented with outbursts of fiery eloquence in a strong voice the message of political freedom, the principles advocated by Theodore Roosevelt, the new nationalism, the humanitarian republicanism. He would wage warfare on dishonesty, against any crooked individual, or the arrangements. The meeting was larger than the Bell meeting, the overflow scrambling for seats in the gallery. ## PHYSICAL WRECK RESTORED TO HEALTH BY GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY.

I feel it my duty to furnish you with my testimonial as to what your remedy Swamp-Root did for me when I was a physical wreck from kidney and bladder trouble. Some years ago I was not able to do any work and could only just creep around and am satisfied that had it not been for Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root I would not have lived. After using the preparation for one month I was able to work some and when I had used $5.00 worth of Swamp-Root I could do a good day's work. I used about $10.00 worth, altogether and would not take Swamp-Root for the good that it did me. I consider it a God-send to suffering humanity for the discovery for which you recommended it and have recommended it many sufferers. H. L. HUGGINS, Welch, Ark.

THE FIRELESS STOVE.

How to Make an Inexpensive and Economical Device.
Now that the fireless stove for cooking purposes is a concrete fact and not merely a dream of tired woman-kind it is timely to tell how the stove can be made from some article to be found around every house.
The fireless cooker, it may be well to say, is a German creation. The idea was evolved for the sake of economizing on money at the expense of time, there being plenty of the latter to spare and not an excessive surplusage of the former in the average household.

Some bright scientist, searching for a means of using his knowledge in the interest of women, studied the cooking kettles in his own kitchen and came to the conclusion that it was an absurd waste of fuel to cook meats until the last moment, taking them directly from the fire to the table.
He reasoned that after the meat or vegetables had been exposed to the fire for a certain length of time the cooking process ought to proceed without further artificial heat.

The means used was to so cover the saucepan as to retain the heat already obtained and let this carry the cooking operation to completion, thus saving all further expense for fuel.
The result of this application of common sense to kitchen economies was that the fireless stove came into use in Germany, the military authorities in that practically militant country being the first to utilize the idea.

Fireless cookers are made of airtight boxes properly insulated to retain heat and the new method of economic cooking is popular all over the Fatherland. It is just beginning to be heard of here and as every woman can make a fireless cooker without much trouble it ought to be in use in every household.

The box must be airtight, so that a trunk with a lid in perfect condition is as well adapted as anything for the purpose. If an old trunk is not available a box can be made by one of the men around the house, or a bread box can be used. Anything of that sort will do, so long as the lid is serviceable and the contents can be kept airtight.

The only accessories to the fireless cooker are a handful of hay and a pillow. The hay must be placed in the box and followed out into a nest for the reception of the saucepan. When the saucepan has been boiled over the gas stove for a short time it can be transferred to the nest of hay and covered with the pillow. Then the lid is clamped down and the contents of the saucepan will go on cooking from the heat that is still retained.

It must not be supposed of course, that the fireless stove is as rapid a cooker as a stove of the ordinary kind. This is not a miracle story, but merely one in which natural common sense ideas are combined with a desire to economize fuel.

It will take much longer to cook with the fireless cooker and any one desirous of catching a train would be likely to kick it outdoors long before the meal was ready to serve.

But it has the inestimable recommendation, besides that of saving fuel, of rendering entirely unnecessary the careful watching that is required with the ordinary stove. The articles cooked in this way simply cannot be overdone. Even if the saucepan be left in the box the entire day the only effect will be to improve the flavor of the contents from the prolonged and steady cooking received. The material for the nest of hay can be placed over the gas stove for a short time in the morning and then transferred to the fireless cooker, with the assurance that it will be ready by the evening, all hot and perfectly cooked, with no watching required.

Don't imagine that you can cook things to a crisp in the fireless stove. It has its limits. It is intended only for such foods as boiled and roasted meats, soups, fish, soups, puddings and vegetables. There is no general rule to be laid down as to the length of time to expose the pot or kettle to the fire, and how long to leave it cooking in the box. Some sort of guide may be taken from the experiments of others, who have found that about half an hour is required for cooking by the ordinary gas stove method and the ordinary way. Allow plenty of time and don't forget a liberal allowance of water.

The Dinner at a Discount.
Judge Adolph Meyer, of Louisiana, who represents New Orleans in Congress, is a calm and unemotional man, except when people talk to him of Governor E. B. Butler and the union soldiers who occupied New Orleans during the civil war.
"I suppose, Judge," a friend said to him, recently, "you were there when Butler's men stole the spoons?"
"No," replied the judge, "I was away fighting in the army, but my family was there. What do you suppose they did to us?" They came into my mother's house one day when the dinner was cooking on the stove.
"And stole the dinner, I suppose," broke in the friend.
"Stole the dinner, my eye!" roared the judge. They threw the dinner on the floor and stole the stove.—Saturday Evening Post.

Kallow—Well, it's an affection for Miss Bute and it's nervous because I'm going to propose to-night.—Philadelphia Press.

Entirely Selfish.
"Are you in favor of government ownership of railways?"
"No," answered Farmer Cornstossel. "I ain't botherin' much one way nor the other. I have had claims agin the railroad an' claims agin the government an' it was a stand-off which got settled first."—Washington Star.

EDITORS URGE ALL TO VOTE FOR TAX LEVY

Adoption of Amendments 33 and 52 Necessary to Win Panama-Pacific Fair.

Assessment Will Not Be Over Five Cents on the Hundred Dollars.—Benefits Immeasurable.

San Francisco.—Reports to the exposition committee from all parts of the State indicate that the two constitutional amendments intended to increase the Panama-Pacific Exposition fund to $17,500,000 will be carried by an overwhelming vote. Newspaper opposition to the measures has practically disappeared and the editors of the State appear to be a unit on the necessity of California going before Congress with a fund that will insure San Francisco being awarded the prize.

Editors who voiced their opposition to the amendments when they were adopted by the Legislature are now enthusiastic champions of the plan to raise $5,000,000 by a State tax and $12,500,000 by bonds on San Francisco. The latter sum, of course, will be no burden to the taxpayers of the State. The debt will be borne entirely by San Francisco, whose citizens have already subscribed about $7,500,000.

The meeting of the State Press Association recently held at the St. Francis Hotel in this city was called to interest the molders of public opinion in the proposed tax levy to be voted on in November. Describing the meeting the Vallejo Chronicle says:

"It was shown clearly that the patriotic spirit of the people of the State should be and is for the proposition, and that it should have the loyal support of every voter. The benefits to accrue from this enterprise will lie throughout the whole State, and it was gratifying to find that the proposition received the unanimous endorsement of the publishers. The State of Louisiana, with an assessed valuation of half a billion dollars hopes to vote an appropriation of $5,000,000 for an exposition at New Orleans. The State of California with an assessed valuation of two and a half billion dollars is asked to vote only $5,000,000. Will the State, five times richer than Louisiana, allow it to be said that this country are too much inclined to put women on pedestals. The only answer to such criticism is pity for the nation that has not such a beautifully decorative use for its idols."

Man Determines to Take Vain Wife Down a Peg and Is Shut Up.
The man admired his wife just about as much as a man can admire a wife, nevertheless when he saw that she was devoting more and more time each day to mirror gazing he determined to take her down a peg. Said he brutally:
"I wouldn't be so stuck on myself if I were you, just because people happen to notice you when you go out. It isn't you they are admiring, it's your clothes. I heard a bunch of women say so just the other day."
For an instant the shock to the woman's vanity was overpowering; then quickly recovering she said:
"In that case I am prouder than ever. Nature is responsible for me, but I designed the clothes myself." And then the man shut up.

If it is true that the world has gone completely to the how-ows, and that vice and corruption are in control, why is that our penitentiaries have no more attraction than they do for men who call themselves honest?

HAD JUST CAUSE FOR PRIDE WAS TOO MUCH FOR POLLY

Man Determines to Take Vain Wife Down a Peg and Is Shut Up.
The man admired his wife just about as much as a man can admire a wife, nevertheless when he saw that she was devoting more and more time each day to mirror gazing he determined to take her down a peg. Said he brutally:
"I wouldn't be so stuck on myself if I were you, just because people happen to notice you when you go out. It isn't you they are admiring, it's your clothes. I heard a bunch of women say so just the other day."
For an instant the shock to the woman's vanity was overpowering; then quickly recovering she said:
"In that case I am prouder than ever. Nature is responsible for me, but I designed the clothes myself." And then the man shut up.

The Girl Who Lives Alone

whether she attends college or goes to business, needs the Perfection Oil Heater. It will heat a cold, cheerless boarding house or dormitory room and make it livable. It is always a ready help in the many things women do for themselves in their rooms. With the damper top opened it will heat water for tea or cocoa; it will dry the small articles that a woman prefers to wash herself in her own room. It will quickly heat an iron or curling tongs; quickly dry wet shoes or skirts—an ever ready help for the woman who lives alone, dependent on her own resources. The

PERFECTION OIL HEATER
Absolutely smokeless and odorless
Is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. It will burn nine hours with one filling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless; has a cool handle and a damper top.
An indicator shows the amount of oil in the font. The fill-cap is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain. It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so the wick can be quickly cleaned.
The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be unscrewed in an instant for reworking. Finished in Japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

Change in men.
Men are not the same through all divisions of their ages; time, experience, self-reflections, and God's mercies, make in some well tempered minds a kind of translation, before as they were; or rather, a bad disposition run into worse habits, the evening doth not crown, but sourly concludes the day.—Sir Thomas Browne.

Many Born on Ocean.
There are about 200 births annually on ships trading to or from British ports.

Phonographic Clocks.
In Switzerland clocks are now being made which do not require hands and faces. The timepieces merely stands in the hall, and you press a button, when by means of the phonographic internal arrangements, it calls out "Half past five" or "Five minutes to nine," as the case may be.

Life Without Food.
How long is it possible to live without food? We have all read of a case that many years since, where some French miners were entombed for twenty-one days, and rescued alive long after everyone thought they must be dead; of course they were in a very weakened condition, and required the utmost care before they were out of danger. This, however, is by no means the longest time that a human being is known to have existed without food, and in a recent issue of the British Medical Journal, there is the record of a woman self-starved from cancer, who could take neither food nor drink of any kind, and existed in that condition for 45 days, and was, moreover, of considerable age.

Remington AUTOLOADING RIFLE
Five one-ton shots! As quick as you can pull the trigger and as straight to the mark as you can look.

Meeting a "big un" with this gun is like shooting a hole in a barn from the inside—and if the first ball shouldn't stop him, he can't gain a yard before he gets it again.
Remington Autoloading Rifle—solid breech, hammerless—ejects, reloads and cocks by recoil without the loss of an ounce of muzzle energy. The only automatic rifle which locks the cartridges in the chamber. Safest and best of big guns.
Made in 25, 30, 32 and 35 Remington calibers. "The Gun for the game Game." Inspect it at any dealer.
